

Introduction

Testing and validation are important stages in the FitBuddy project. Testing is performed to verify that the application works correctly and that the different modules are properly integrated.

The application is tested from the frontend, backend, AI integration and database perspectives